Subscribe to Digital Edition of The Catholic Weekly for $1 a week

Readers of The Catholic Weekly can now enjoy the full digital edition of the newspaper each week with exclusive access to news, features and opinion.

The Weekly trialled the digital flipbook of the newspaper in March when churches closed during the COVID-19 lockdown in NSW and printing temporarily ceased. Such was the online success of the flipbook, it will continue to be produced alongside the print edition of the newspaper, which can still be purchased in your parish or by direct subscription to your home address.

For digital natives who prefer to consume news online, the paper can now be read in full via your desktop, smartphone or iPad for just $1 a week for a limited 12 weeks.

At the end of this period, readers can purchase an annual subscription for $50, saving $100 at <https://www.catholicweekly.com.au/product/the-catholic-weekly-digital-edition/>

Editor Peter Rosengren said the new digital edition would help the newspaper reach new audiences across Australia and globally.

“We know our publication is well respected across the country and through this new offer, thousands more readers will be able to access breaking news, features and analysis on contemporary issues from a Catholic perspective anytime from anywhere”, Mr Rosengren said.

“Our print edition will continue to be available in parishes, but the flipbook enables digital natives to read the publication on the platform of their choice.”

The digital edition is formatted identically to the print edition and is available at this link: <https://www.catholicweekly.com.au/product/1-for-1/>
