CATHOLIC ARCHBISHOP OF SYDNEY CONDEMNS ANTISEMITIC ATTACKS

A Statement from the Catholic Archbishop of Sydney, Most Rev. Anthony Fisher OP

The antisemitic acts of vandalism that occurred this week in Woollahra are shocking and shameful, and I condemn them unreservedly.

Sadly, these types of attacks are becoming all too frequent. No person or group in this country should be subject to hatred, intimidation or violence based on their faith or ethnicity.

Our nation is proudly multicultural, and we accept and welcome people of all faiths.

It is for precisely this reason that many people fleeing persecution around the globe — whether for reasons religious, sectarian, or ethnic — make Australia their home.

But this is something we must constantly work to keep. I call on all people, including our civic and religious authorities at every level, to do all they can to ensure that our society is peaceful and free from acts of hatred.
